

Sharony Ray | Artist - Bio

Sharony Ray is an emerging abstract artist who lives and paints in San Francisco.

Sharony Ray began her creative journey rooted in traditional architectural forms and landscapes under the tutelage of her mother, who is an established artist based out of India. Being an engineer-artist, her fascination towards shapes and how they interact has remained a constant area of exploration throughout her practice.

Over time, her artistic journey has evolved into a deep exploration of minimalistic geometric abstraction, where colors, shape, lines and the composition take center stage. Primarily working in oil, she utilizes the medium's rich texture and depth to uncover subtle nuances within each piece, building layered compositions that invite viewers into contemplative and open-ended narratives.

After completing her painting studies course at the Rhode Island School of Design, she has focused on working independently out of her San Francisco studio where she spends most of her evenings conceptualizing, designing and creating her work. Her practice has been recognized with Curator's Choice Awards at the esteemed SFWA Gallery in San Francisco, and she has exhibited her art in galleries across the United States—including in New York and California—as well as internationally.